A jet engine shop gets world-class stamp

‘FAA Certification Brings It On A Par With International Repair Agencies, Enables It To Serve Foreign Airlines’

Shabir Khan | 1/7/07

New Delhi: Last year, Indian Airlines was in the news for having many planes grounded due to lack of engine. Things have looked up since then. Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) has granted Indian Airlines an FAA certification.

Mr. Ajay Prakash, Joint Director of Maintenance, Indian Airlines, said that it was set up in 1991 by GE for overhaul Centre (JEOC) in Delhi. It is the only JEOC in Delta. He said that over a period of time, some 13 15 jet engines are being repaired at the centre every day. The repair cycle can take three to four weeks.

Mr. Prakash said that the FAA certification will help the airline save money and time. "We hope to reach a target of 30 engines by the end of the year. The FAA certification will also help in improving the safety and quality of work done by the shop. It will help us serve the airlines better," he added.

Mr. Prakash said that the certification will also help in increasing the number of international flights. "The certification will help us serve the airlines better. It will also help us to increase the number of international flights," he added.

Indian Airlines is one of the largest airlines in the world and has a fleet of over 200 aircraft. The airline has been facing financial problems in recent years, and the certification is expected to help the airline by improving its operations and reducing costs.

Too many Bt cotton brands leave AP farmers confused

Santosh Kumar

New Delhi: On average, every farmer in India is left with 20 Bt cotton brands to choose from. The problem arises when the crop for the agrarian distress is in the crop for the agrarian distress. The problem arises when the crop is not identified by the farmer. Many farmers have been left confused by the lack of proper marketing and distribution of Bt cotton seeds.

According to a report by the NABARD, the increase in the number of Bt cotton brands has led to a decrease in the seed market. Farmers are not able to keep up with the rapid technological changes in the sector. "Farmers are in a tricky situation, where they have to choose the right brand of Bt cotton seeds," said the report.

The market offers hundreds of branded and non-branded Bt cotton seeds. Many farmers are uncertain about the quality and efficacy of these seeds. They are not able to keep up with the rapid technological changes in the sector. "Farmers are in a tricky situation, where they have to choose the right brand of Bt cotton seeds," said the report.

The solution, said the report, is to bring farmers into the process of thinking and marketing of Bt cotton seeds. The report suggested that the government should take steps to make sure that farmers get the right information about the quality and efficacy of Bt cotton seeds. The government should also ensure that farmers get proper marketing and distribution of Bt cotton seeds.

Tajudeen’s insurance plea pending for 12 yrs

Mumbai: The trial against the 1995 serial blasts accused Patel was in the news for the first time in 2007. Patel is accused of murder, conspiracy, and waging war against the state.

It all started in 1995 when the then special judge in the case filed a plea with the state to transfer the case to a special judge. Patel is accused of murder, conspiracy, and waging war against the state.

The trial has been pending for 12 years. "The RTI application shows that the judge himself has been involved in other cases," said a senior lawyer.

The situation is further complicated by the fact that the judge is involved in other cases. "The judge is involved in other cases. The matter is complex and requires a special judge," said a senior lawyer.
